Rounding Out Perfection.

To aim high is ambition. But it takes experience to hit the mark. On January first we closed the sixth season of the Greater Saks Stores. Six successful seasons == that surpass the growth of any previous epoch in our history.

Yet we were not satisfied that we were giving you the best service possible. There seemed to our riper experience room for improvement. The foundation was unquestionably right. But the increased business had outgrown the detailed provision.

Your material patronage told of the solid satisfaction you found in shopping here—making us only the more alert to provide greater facilities. Many departments were congested—not quite so handily arranged as they might be. But the span of service was complete. We touched every point required of a modern store, given to the earnest prosecution of business, lacking only in those features that to your judgment and ours seem out of place within commercial precincts.

It has ever been the guiding principle of this business to promptly respond to the demands of progress—so with the close of the past season we arranged to make improvements that should place the store upon our IDEAL plane of perfection.

We didn't apologize for the temporary inconveniences—because we knew you'd read in the chaos another Saks effort in your behalf-and that the annoyances of then would be more than compensated for in the faultlessness of the near future.

We have carried these plans to successful completion. The Sixth Floor of the Western Section, heretofore given up to the holding of the reserve stocks, has been finished and fitted into a light. airy and pleasant salesroom, adding another immense area to our selling space -- AN AGGREGATE NOW OF TEN SPACIOUS SELLING FLOORS. This necessitated the acquisition of nearby quarters for the surplus stocks. Such a place was found in the great double four-story Polkinhorn Buildings, Nos. 638 and 640 D street. With the room thus gained the departments were able to expand-admitted of their rearrangement and permanent location at more convenient points—and solved the hitherto impossible convenience of a ladies' parlor down stairs, in addition to the retiring room on the Fourth Floor. IT GAVE OPPORTUNITY FOR THE ACCOMPLISHMENT OF JUST WHAT WE HAVE BEEN AIMING

FOR—PERFECTION! Now we wholly feel that the store is what so many of its friends have pronounced it-THE BEST IN WASHINGTON. Such it shall be in every sense. It contains by far the LARGEST AREA ACTUALLY OCCUPIED FOR RETAILING IN THE DISTRICT. And we've the happy consciousness of knowing the expansion was required-DEMANDED-by the rapidly increasing volume of our trade.

It has not been our object to see how many lines we could make a pretense of establishing. But how COMPLETE AND ATTRACTIVE WE COULD MAKE THESE WE HAVE. To lift them out of the category of mere departments, and maintain them upon a broader scale. To make this not one store of many parts-but a FEDERATION OF FULL-FLEDGED STORES-foremost and leading-each independent in its service-yet all ruled by the same liberal and progressive policy-guarded by the same watchful care. The merchandise of each measuring up to our recognized high standard of value, and offered at our typically low prices, surrounded by our guarantee that has grown famous in its meaningful sincerity. .

What wonder it's a popular shopping place! What wonder it grows!

A Woman's Wail. To the Editor of The Evening Star:

If the funds at the disposal of the District Commissioners for clearing away snow are exhausted, as stated, it is a matter of unusually deep regret when the streets are in the condition they are at present; and the man who wrote to the Commissioners the other day, saying that they have no legal right to punish people who refuse to clear snow from the sidewalks in front of their premises may be all right and a sound constitutional lawyer (as well as a kicker) and all that sort of thing. I don't know anything about that. All I have to say on that point is that if he is correct I am sorry for it. But what I do want to put on record in the columns of The Star is the firm and deliberate opinion (which is surely entertained by 99 per cent of my sex, and probably by nearly as large a percentage of male pedestrians, as well, that the proprietors of hotels and business establishments that occupy street corner memises, who haven't sufficient energy and thoughtfulness to clear a clean and dry path through the snow on the street crossings in front of their premises, show mighly little public spirit and a world want of sonsideration for the comfort and health of their tustomers—present and prospective—and ought to be ashamed of themselves. of the House-A Talk With the Inventor.

Admiral Dewey has sent to Representa tive Foss, acting chairman of the House committee on naval affairs, a letter inclosing a copy of a memorandum prepared by his aid, Lieut. H. H. Caldwell, upon the tests of the submarine torpedo boat Holland, held on the Potomac last Wednesday leut. Caldwell was aboard the Holland during the trials, and in the course of his report says:

"Throughout the performance there was no accident or hitch of any sort, and the ease with which either part of the mechanism was manipulated was particularly

Although these men were all highly skilled and showed a confidence due to their long service in the boat, I think the duties could be easily performed by the duties could be easily performed by the petty officers of the navy after a short trial. The boat did not roll and she only pitched slightly at the time of diving, and she righted immediately after attaining the required depth. The torpedo was discharged with the greatest ease. Only a very slight shock occurred to the boat when the torpedo was fired.

Crew at Work.

"The captain gave orders to the engineer by the ordinary method of bells and to the torpedo men and pump men by word of mouth. The loud noise made by the gearing of the propelling engine at all times when under way made it necessary for the no time was there the slightest confusion or no time was there the slightest confusion or hesitation in obeying orders. When submerged the boat was kept at the chosen depth without any difficulty by means of the horizontal rudder. The evenness of the immersion was well shown by the depth gauges, but must also have been apparent from the other vessels from the positions of the flags.

"It is worthy of note that from the first immersion the water as seen through the immersion the water as seen through the deadlights was entirely opaque, and at the maximum depth it looked almost black. During the nearly three hours we were in the boat the air was entirely sweet."

Admiral Dewey's Approval. In transmitting the memorandum to Repesentative Foss, Admiral Dewey indorsed it, and also approved that part of it in which Lieut. Caldwell expressed the opinion that a determined enemy with a submarine boat of the Holland type could have made the occupation of Manila bay by the made the occupation of Manila bay by the admiral's squadron impossible.

The inventor, Mr. John G. Holland, and the representatives of the Holland Torpedo Boat Company in this city, including President Rice and Mr. C. E. Creecy, expressed themselves today as being very much gratisfied at Admiral Dewey's action, but were not surprised at it, owing to their confidence in the craft. Mr. Holland, in conversation with a Star reporter, said he was naturally very much pleased. As well known, Mr. Holland is an Irishman and was a schoolmaster at Cork when he first undertook to solve the problem of submarine navigation.

marine navigation. "This is St. Patrick's day, you know, and the second anniversary as well of the first successful dive of the Holland, so the fact of such high commendation of the boat makes the anniversary in every respect a notable one.

"I may say that there is considerable misapprehension about the state of development to which submarine navigation can be brought. I can state that its stature, so to speak, has been reached when the question of efficiency is considered. The prob-The plans for my new boats, hich include many improvements over the Holland, call for vessels somewhaf larger. The horse power in the Holland is forty-five; this can be increased to 150. I have also plans for smaller boats than the Hol-land, which two or three men will be able to navigate, and which will carry three

"High speed is valueless in submarine navigation," he continued. "Even a fish going at a rapid rate just beneath the surface of the water leaves a break on top. To be efficacious the submarine boat must be able to move in secrecy and a speed of ten knots an hour is as great as permissible to knots an hour is as great as permissible to assure this quality. A large boat, too, could not be handled with the rapidity and readiness of a smaller craft. A small boat diving like a porpoise is the requisite thing in submarine navigation. It can approach an enemy's vessel, pop to the surface to observe its whereabouts, sink immediately, and after getting within sirking distance rise again, discharge its torpedo and again go under water and retreat."

REPORT ON THE HOLLAND THE WORLD OF SOCIETY

Admiral Dewey and His Aid, Lieut. Cald- The Events of Micareme Week Foreshadowed.

Memorandum Sent to Naval Committee Green is the Fashionable Color Toda; -Dinners and a Luncheon-

With the various things planned for the oming week it promises to be quite eventful in entertainments and topics as Lenten days go. The German ambassador will be host on Wednesday night of a reception, to 11, and a cotillion later. Baron Speck von Sternburg will lead the cotillion. Mrs Cushman K. Davis has given her house for two evenings, Monday for a Shakespereau recital and Tuesday for a charity euchre. There is also reason to suppose that an en gagement of a well-liked member of the diplomatic corps and the daughter of a prominent family, also within that envied circle, will be announced before long although shrewd observers say it would have been long ago if there had been the slightest ground for it. The annual St. Joseph's day dinner at the Home for the Aged, under the care of the Little Sisters of the Poor, will be the attraction of Monday next for a large portion of the younger set in society. The dinners go merrily on, as the departures of the dining fraternity for other scenes have not been near as numerous as might have been expected. Otherwise the days and nights are given up to informal meetings, quite the most restful and satisfactory methods of passing time. The engagements made public the past

The engagements made public the past week, those of Miss Edith Morton, Miss Helen Benedict, Miss Mabel McKinley and Miss Katherine Clark, are of an unusually interesting character. That all these representative young women, three of whom are great heiresses and have traveled the world over and have seen life in its most luxurious phases, should have each selected an American is a matter of no small importance, and is an example well worthy of emulation. The marriage of Miss Morton and Mr. Eustis will be just as interesting to Washingtonians as to New Yorkers, as will, indeed, that of Miss McKinley and Mr. Baer, and doubly so if the happy event takes place at the White House, which is quite probable. Senator Clark and his famility have also many friends in Washington, his daughters during their recent visit having had an opportunity to revive old and make many new friendships, especially among the old resident families. There is no need today to hide the "wearing of the green." Society has followed the English beck and rejoices with the loters of the green isle that another St. Patrick's day has come around. The British embassy shares the general enthusiasm manifested over British soil which at last does honor to Irish valor and loyalty. Ireland's patron saint is in fashlonable society, and her bright green will adorn many a festive board or more simple tea table today. Pity it is that somebody capable of reading the signs did not plan for a real St. Patrick's "tay," and they would have scored a triumph of which the Queen of England would have been pleased to read—in these would have been pleased to read-in thes days of telephone and messenger service hasty parties are possible that many such gatherings will be hele

My dear Pittle Elshe, I miss you no.
All through the digit how benefy it seems.
For no little Elshe wakes my out of my decume. I miss her all through the weary bours.
I miss her all through the weary bours.
I miss her all through the weary bours.
I miss her all through the weary fours.
I miss her all through the weary fours.
I miss her all through the weary fours.
BY PAPA AND MAMMA.

Through the pearly gates of heaven
Passed the one I loved so d.ar.
God thought best to race by from us,
Thought best to race by from us,
Thought she left our home so drear.
But love stream to loop ber with us.
But love and skill were all in vain,
We had to lay our darling sister
Neath the graveyand - sed away.
Death's cruel dart did pierce our heart
And beneath the silent sed
My darling syster sleeps.

BY SISTER DORA.
